

This half term the children are learning about the Mayan early civilisation. As part of their studies they are learning about the history of chocolate. It was the Mayans that originally discovered the cocoa bean and started drinking it for pleasure.

Children have been asked to design and make their own chocolate making machine, which can turn any object into chocolate. They can use any resources, cardboard boxes, shoebox, cereal boxes, bottle lids, cartoons, paper and any other materials from home.

Please be as creative as possible and be sure to get involved in this exciting design and craft project.

We look forward to seeing your creations!

Best wishes
