

Using Conjunctions to Extend Sentences

For each of these sentences, match up an extra information sentence to extend the main clause. You will need to choose a conjunction from the word bank below to begin your new clause. Make sure you use a conjunction and clause which makes sense! Be careful to check your sentence punctuation when you write the new sentence. Look at these examples:

e.g. Mum is coming to pick me up tonight. + I'm going to the dentist. + because

Mum is coming to pick me up tonight because I'm going to the dentist. [this makes sense]

e.g. Mum is coming to pick me up tonight. + I'm wearing a coat. + although

Mum is coming to pick me up tonight although I'm wearing a coat. [this is nonsense!]

Word Bank

although

while because

if

when

I'm not wearing my coat.

My mum offered to help me.

I had a go at all the questions.

The weather is very cold.

There won't be any playground toys left.

The summer arrives.

Maria is still working.

We were watching a film.

Doctor Who is a popular programme.

It's too hot today.

The pavement is really slippery.

She has finished the main task.

Some people get an allergic reaction.

I'm not sure I got them all right.

We ate lots of popcorn.

Lots of people like science fiction.

Swallows fly to Britain.

They eat peanuts.

I couldn't finish my homework.

We don't look after them.