Chapter 3 – Renwood (Name of your own character)

A few days later, Wolf and I went in search of something to eat. Unbeknown to us, our journey took us into the Windriver, which is part of the Raven Clan. Three hunters surrounded us. Three bow and arrows all pointing at him. My thoughts swarmed through my mind but I couldn't think of how to escape. Where was Wolf? Why couldn't I see Wolf?

"This is our part of the forest!" shouted the shortest boy. He had brown scruffy hair and he continued to aim his bow right in the direction of my heart. I scanned the forest and realised that the trees, which were once covered with pine leaves, were now bare. They were replaced with white timber.

I decided to act as if I was lost, "What do you mean?" trying really hard to look confused, I turned my head slowly to see if Wolf was anywhere in sight, "the forest doesn't belong to anyone."

The next part was unexpected. They grabbed my arms and forced me to walk with them to their leader: Fin-Kedinn. The next thing I saw was pitch-black. Waking up with a pounding headache, I found myself in the middle of a village standing in front of Fin-Kedinn himself. We were surrounded by Neolithic houses, with a large lake to the north of us.
